Re : Mr Emmanouil Zacharakis

Mr Zacharakis worked as part of the Academic Surgical Unit, at St Mary's Hospital, Imperial College Healthcare NHS Trust and Imperial College London. He joined the team in July 2006 as senior clinical fellow, until 2007 completed periods as both laparoscopic Colorectal Fellow and Upper GI Surgery Fellow. This then lead to him being appointed as a Locum Upper GI Surgeon at St Marys Hospital in 2007. In 2009 he was then appointed to a substantive post as a consultant in Upper GI Surgery at St Mary's and Senior Lecturer at Imperial College London from October 2009 to May 2012. While as St Mary's Mr Zacharakis has performed advanced upper and lower GI surgery, which also include advanced laparoscopic procedures and bariatrics. He has also performed Hepatobiliary surgery. He has also had experience of a wide range of general surgical emergencies and trauma surgery in our trauma unit.

Mr Zacharakis is an excellent and reliable colleague who I enjoyed working with and operating with I have no hesitation in supporting him in his future career

Yours sincerely
